

License Agreement

BESL Loudspeaker Design Data

By accepting this license agreement the Purchaser agrees to the following terms and conditions:

1. Purchaser is granted license to build up to five individual loudspeaker cabinets and/or crossovers for personal and individual use. Additional units may only be constructed by remitting payment to BESL for the new units. At any time Purchaser may negotiate terms for change of ownership of BESL loudspeaker designs, royalties, and so on.
2. This License confers no title or ownership in the design data, and is not a sale of any rights to the information. All data and information provided to Purchaser by BESL is Confidential and Proprietary exclusively to BESL and is not to be released or sold to any other party, or to be reproduced or published without prior written consent by BESL. BESL remains the sole owner of any such data or information.
3. BESL proprietary crossover network diagrams are identified by their specific Topology, i.e. the exact type, order, and connection of individual active or passive components, including loudspeaker driver brand and model. Because BESL recognizes that similar topologies could conceivably be developed independently by others, further indication of a BESL designed network includes the exact component values plus or minus 20% of the reference values.
4. BESL proprietary cabinet designs are identified by unique trademark design features and construction methods.
5. BESL guarantees that any proprietary information provided to Purchaser is accurate within the particular design and measurement boundaries available to BESL at the time of service. BESL is not liable for any misprints or other clerical errors, nor for errors arising from inaccurate data provided by Purchaser to BESL. BESL does not guarantee results.
6. For proprietary cabinet or network designs, data, measurements, or any other information provided by BESL to Purchaser, this agreement is considered binding as evidenced by either one or both of the following events transpiring:
 - a) by receipt of payment for services from Purchaser to BESL;
 - b) by Purchaser's signature and date on the License Agreement.

I agree to the above terms and conditions.
